Brain Disorders/Neurological

Acute Carpal Tunnel Syndrome

Acute Carpal Tunnel Syndrome in a diver: evidence of peripheral Nervous system Involvement in decompression illness.

Isakov AP, Broome JR, Dutka AJ

Naval medical Research Institute, Bethesda Maryland, USA

Conclusive evidence for involvement of the peripheral nervous system in decompression illness is lacking. We report a case of decompression Illness associated with shoulder pain and the clinical features of Median nerve injury at the wrist Initial recompression and Hyperbaric Oxygen treatment produced prompt relief of all symptoms and signs.

Legal Disclaimer

The content and information provided within this site is for informational and educational purposes only. Consult a doctor before pursuing any form of therapy, including Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy. The Information provided within this site is not to be considered Medical Advice. In Full Support of the F.D.A., Hyperbaric Oxygen Therapy is considered Investigational, Experimental, or Off Label.

Please consult with your Treating Medical Physician